A Bibulous Lord Mayor. Any one with a love of queer names should study the names of past lord mayors of London. Besides one or two that are merely uncommon and did not belong to men of any distinction, uch as Sir Richard Spaa, mayor in 1482, there are some that deserve no tice also for the sake of those who bore There was Sir John Brugges in 1520, whose ancestor fought at Agin court, when, curiously enough, the Brydges. There was Alderman Mica jah Perry in 1739, who laid the first tone of the Mausion House, and Sir Benjamin Hamet, who was fined £1,000 in 1797 for refusing to act as mayorpositively a cheap way of getting out

The most appropriately named lord mayor seems, however, to have been the cheerful Sir Robert Viner, who en tertained Charles II. and drank th king's health so often as to become un duly merry. The king tactfully sought to retire, but Viner plucked him by the sleeve and vowed he should "stay and take the other bottle?" Charles II., never at a loss, compiled, murmuring. "He that is drunk is as great as a king."-St. James' Gazette.

Awed by the Beau.

When Beau Brummel, the celebrated landy, was, in consequence of his fallen fortunes, residing at Calais, he had occasion to visit Paris. Through the kindness of the consul at the forner place he was enabled to accom oany a king's messenger to the capital and thus travel free of expense. When the messenger returned, the consul was curious to know how he and his aristocratic companion had fraternized upon the road. "What kind of a traveling companion did you find Mr. Brummel?" asked he. "Oh., a very pleasant one, indeed, sir; very pleasant," replied the messenger. "Ah! And what did he say?" "Say, sir? Nothing! He slept the whole way." "Slept the whole way! Do you call that being pleasant? Perhaps he snored!" The messenger acknowledged that Brummel did so, but immediately, as if fearful of casting an improper reflection upon so great a personage, he added, with great gravity, "Yet I can assure you, sir, Mr. Brummel snored very much like a gentleman!"-Argonaut.

The Flight of a Great Nebula. One of the most striking spectacles revealed by telescopes is that of the great nebula in Orion. In the complexity of its glowing streams, spirals and strangely shaped masses, intercepted by yawning black gaps and sprinkled over with stars arranged in suggestive groups and lines, it has few rivals in the heavens. The impres-sion of astonishment made by the sight of this nebula is heightened by knowledge of its enormous size. The entire solar system would appear as a tiny speck beside it. Yet this tremendous aggregation of nebulous clouds and starry swarms has been proved by the researches of the astronomers of the Lick observatory to be flying away from the earth and the sun at the rate of eleven miles in every second. so vast is its distance that a hundred years reveal no visual effects of the great nebula's swift retreat. If it were near by it would seem to become rapidly smaller.-Chicago Record Herald.

A Faithful Friend. "I have used Chamberlain's Colic, was first introduced to the public in 1872, and have never found one instance where a cure was not speedily effected by its use. I have been a commercial traveler for eighteen years, and never start out on a trip without this, my faithful friend," says H. S. Nichols of Oakland, Ind. Ter. When a man has used a remedy for thirty-five years he know its value and is competent to speak of it. For sale by W. F. Oreighton & Co. and Richard Gibson. Co. and Richard Gibson.
